Warnings are beginning to come of the danger of the transmission of this disease by houseflies. The average man is more concerned about having them walk over him and bite him, especially the baldheaded man. It is said that a most effective fly trap can be made by taking a globular white gas shade of glass, and pasting some hair on the sides and a false face in front. The exposed portion of the glass is then smeared with the varnish or gum used on fly paper. Flies will come miles to bite it, especially if mounted on a stuffed form, and set in a rocking chair, in an attitude of sleep.

The numerous cases of people who had been divorced and did not know it, and those who thought they had been divorced when they had not, present phases of the divorce evil that call for attention. Either position is almost as pathetic as that of Bill Nye's rival editor, who, he declared, had been dead for several years, but his friends had neglected to bury him.

The movement in Baptist circles to abolish the church strawberry festival and oyster supper is one that will be looked upon with disfavor by many who have felt it their duty to attend the stated eatings of the church. There is not, so far as known, any record of anybody incurring damage from over eating at a church function.

Dr Earp's motto for after-dinner speakers that, "It is better that a man should be a five-minute hit than a twenty-minute bore" should be inscribed in gold letters on all china and glassware used for banquets. And it would not be amiss to put it on the cutlery, the table linen and the furniture.

The 1,500 Russian immigrants, who were brought into port in a disabled ship, set a good example by getting down on their knees and returning thanks for their deliverance. The tendency to prayer is usually most noticeable in such cases only while the danger lasts.

Now that the price of meat has gone up it will be a good time to test the theory that our health would be better if we ate less meat. Summer is a good time to practice vegetarianism, anyway; that is—come to think of it vegetables are not what could be called cheap.

It has now been discovered that tears kill many varieties of pernicious germs. Even if they do, the average man is mean enough to discourage weeping in his vicinity. If a germicide is needed he would prefer to employ iodoform or kerosene emulsion.

According to census figures 5,000,000 women in this country are working for their living. If the universal lament of housekeepers is any sign, 5,000,000 more can find immediate employment as cooks.

The prose of infantile elopements is now being illustrated by the Indiana bride of 16 years who is suing for divorce after a honeymoon of three weeks—moon in the third quarter, as it were.

The government's proceeding against the umbrella trust is something that nobody will object to. The present season makes an umbrella trust especially obnoxious.

Secretary Taft says all women should marry happily. Of course they should; ditto, the men.
